

Linda Fink is back with more misadventures . . .
 Here's what readers say about Linda's first book, Life in the Goat Lane:

"Several times I tried to read a paragraph to a friend, only to collapse, laughing till the tears streamed." . . . M.B., Oregon

"Whenever I need a lift, I turn to a chapter of your book. We need you, . . . G.T., South Dakota

"Thanks for helping us through the struggles with your wonderful . . . and every word of it." . . . J.Y., Indiana

"On the plane . . . and people were looking at me like I'd lost it laughing so much." . . . J.N., Idaho

"Your book. So did our goat Barney. He took a big bite out of the hand corner of the cover." . . . P.S., Illinois

"I read that book was one of the best things I ever did! My husband and said he's finally found someone to talk to." . . . S.S., Virginia

"I had a good laugh, I pick up your book and it makes me want to nail the yearling milkers' hooves to the milk can." . . . G.T., South Dakota

"I read your book. I laughed until I cried and my husband said I should have a copy of my own . . . S.Y., South Dakota

"I would read it and only reading two chapters per night so that I could last as long as possible." . . . S.K., Michigan

"I rather jump on a pile of thumbtacks than read, but I love your book." . . . K.C., Iowa

"I haven't had such a good laugh in a long time!! It's so true. That's what makes it so hilarious." . . . L.P., Ontario, Canada

HOW TO LIVE WITH TEENAGERS I give up. How?

Fink's first book told how to live with goats. Her second book tells how to live with teenagers. The method is the same: laugh. No matter what crazy stunts the kids pull, look on the funny side. If you can't think of anything funny about teenagers, read this book.

"Experts...say a messy room is a teenager's declaration of territory and a natural part of growing up. Birds declare their territories by singing. Why can't my sons?"

- Part One: How Parents Mess Up Teenagers
- Part Two: How Teenagers Mess Up Parents
- Part Three: How Messed Up Are We?
